L.S.F.A. Honors Flyer With First-Place Rating

The Flyer received a first-place rating from the Louisiana Science Fair on February 8. It explained the "what," "how," and "use" of his gas law. This is one of the different occasions which McWhorter has had the opportunity to speak before a group concerning science.

Holding that "what is better," the organization, at its last meeting, divided into specific groups to prepare the chemistry experiment, the Redneck Race. According to Spitzer, the club plans to have experiments in the future and "all interested students are invited to attend the meetings." He added that a student does not have to be a member of the Science Club to enter a project in the fair. Any student, however, wishing to enter a project or research paper should contact either Fr. R. E. Rossmore, R.J., or Spitzer.

'Dropout City,' U.S.A.

It was just another ordinary day in the life of the town's citizens. The only incident which caused a stir was the arrival of some news "thrucoms." They were just like everyone else—blatant, hollow, and uninteresting in things in general.

Yes, this was and still is a rural school of "Dropout City," U.S.A., a place as vast as this wonderful country of ours.

But the question arises, how did this location come into being? It was a joint effort, requiring the "assistance" of many persons; just as a small school, which sent rolling down a steep hill, mushrooms into a huge plume of smoke, so too a few individuals have created many more to their ranks in the "Dropout City" detachment. To purge the "why" of this situation further, we discern an attitude of indifference and negligence on the part of many high school and even college students. A cause might be the do-or-die nature of the many advantages a person, "hitchhiker" from a college education. Each personally finds individual joy in college education. In one aspect it still is the dark about this town's quality and strength of a man's acceptance of his role, and his sense of personal identity and responsibility, as the leader of the team. Guest Editorial

The tragic deaths of three students of Byrd High School have overshadowed Shreveport. The general spirit has dropped to a pessimistic low. Parents expressed their hope that if it had been any one of their own children who had died, it wasn't their girl friend or boy friend.

When a teenager is killed in such a horrible way, the sorrow seems deeper. This is because a young person has been cut off short, in his trip to a possible success. We now all admit this to be true. As a result, we feel that if this accident ever so often to remind ourselves of the dangers of fast driving and what sorrow it can cause for others.

Unfortunately, a person must be hurt and even killed to make us stop and think. This tragic event should teach us to be aware of potential accidents.

Many Individuals Question What Pop Music Gives Us

What has the "pop" music of today given us? A great number of people have probably asked this question, especially the older set.

It seems that many try to "buy" into the modern "pop" music. They are enticed by its new styles and its new sounds. But for the most part, it is just a waste of money.

It is not that the music is bad, but that it is not what we need. It is not that the music is bad, but that it is not what we need. It is not that the music is bad, but that it is not what we need.
